

Prof. Dalli serves in the Department of Economics and Management as Full Professor of Marketing and Consumer Behavior. He also teaches in other Universities, in Italy and Europe, in Mba and Phd programs. He is the Coordinator of the Master program in Marketing Management. He has been assistant professor at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, before joining the University of Pisa as Associate Professor.

His research areas are: business ethics, consumer behavior, consumption communities, value co-creation

He has published in journals such as Journal of Business Research, Journal of Business Ethics, International Journal of Research in Marketing, Management Decision, Managing Service Quality. He is the co-author of a Consumer Behaviour textbook for undergraduate and master's courses. He is member of the Editorial Board of Marketing Theory and acts as Editor of Mercati & Competitività.